Lloyd International Honors College is now inviting nominations for the Student Excellence Award, which is conferred each spring at the Student Honors Convocation. This award is the highest academic honor given to undergraduates at UNCG. Lloyd International Honors College’s Honors Council celebrates the most outstanding of UNCG’s undergraduate students by selecting the winners from among the nominees. The Honors Council bestows the award on those seniors with high academic achievement who have engaged in

- Creativity, initiative, and/or perseverance inside and outside the classroom;
- Significant service and leadership at the university;
- Other ways of enriching communities on and beyond campus.

Evidence of these accomplishments is usually demonstrated inside the classroom by the achievement of high grades and the superior completion of specific projects and assignments. Outside the classroom evidence typically includes such activities as independent research and other creative activities, study abroad, and community involvement that are linked to the student’s academic studies. The nomination as well as two faculty recommendations should speak to these criteria and address student performance in both settings with specific examples. Spaces for this information are provided on the recommendation form which is available on the Honors College website.

The Convocation will take place the evening of Thursday, April 26, 2018 in the Auditorium of the Elliott University Center. Each academic department and interdisciplinary program may nominate up to two students for the award.

Nominated students must have at least a 3.80 GPA and at least 90 semester hours earned from all institutions (with at least 45 semester hours earned at UNCG) as of January 2018. Hours of academic credit earned abroad while a student at UNCG should be included as UNCG hours. December 2017 graduates who meet these criteria are eligible. A student may win the award only once.
The deadline for receiving nominations from Department Heads or Program Directors is February 2nd, 2018, at 5:00 p.m. Each nomination package must include the following:

1. A completed nomination form providing all the information requested, and signed by the Head or Director.
