

The Rebecca A. Lloyd
Distinguished Resident Fellowship
January-December 2019

Call for Applications

Lloyd International Honors College is now accepting applications for the 2019 Rebecca A. Lloyd Distinguished Resident Fellowship. Central to the mission of Lloyd International Honors College are the talented UNCG faculty who teach Honors courses and work closely with our students as research mentors. For the January through December 2019 period the Honors College will appoint a Distinguished Resident Fellow who will teach two Honors seminars in the Spring, one Honors seminar in the Fall (or vice-versa), a Colloquium section, give a public lecture, and help build the life of the Honors community over the course of the academic period by attending Honors College events, meeting with students, and working with Dean Ali and the Honors staff.

Honors seminars are small, with a maximum of 25 students. Fellows have the opportunity to teach in new and creative ways and on topics that they may not otherwise get a chance to teach in their own department or program. The Fellow will have a total of a three course buy-out, receive a $4,000 research award to be used during the period of the Fellowship, and have their own office in North Spencer Residence Hall, with administrative support and printing and copying access. The Fellowship is open to all full-time UNCG faculty. The term of the Fellowship will be from January through December of 2019.

Expectations:

- Teach three Honors seminars of their own design (one in the Fall and two in the Spring, or vice-versa)
- Teach a single Honors Colloquium section in the Fall (this is a one-credit class for incoming International Honors students)
- Offer a public lecture in the Fall
- Participate in the Fall and Spring Honors College Faculty Reception and Discussion
- Attend a single Honors Council meeting at the beginning of the year and one at the end
- Attend one Honors staff meeting each semester
- Chair one session at the Undergraduate Honors Symposium and assist in facilitating one additional specialized program during the academic year.

Please note: Fellows are welcome to create programming of their own in consultation with the Dean and Honors staff beyond the above expectations.

The Fellow is typically released from their departmental or program service responsibilities during the fellowship year but may continue certain ongoing obligations such as serving on M.A. and Ph.D. committees or administering external grants. The $4,000 research stipend, payable only during the year of the Fellowship, may be spent as the Fellow determines it is appropriate to their research, with expenditures requiring the approval of the Dean of the Honors College and the Fellow's department Head or program Director.

While the Fellowship covers the year, the title of Rebecca A. Lloyd Distinguished Resident Fellow in Lloyd International Honors College remains a permanent appellation for the faculty member within the Honors College during their service at UNCG. Thus, Fellows will be included in all future Honors Faculty Fellow activities and invited to Honors College events. Their names and disciplines will be inscribed on a plaque in the Honors College office.

Application and Selection Process

Please submit a complete application to Lloyd International Honors College (Foust, 205) by Friday, April 6, 2018. Applications should include the following six items:

1. Application Form (page four of this document) with signatures
2. Letter of interest addressing what you might contribute to the mission of the Honors College
3. Curriculum Vitae
4. List of courses you have taught over the previous two years
5. Proposal of courses you would like to teach during the 2019 year (1-2 pages)
6. Brief description of your research agenda (1 page)

The selection of the Fellow will be made by an Honors College selection committee. Following a review of materials by the committee, finalists will be interviewed by the Dean and members of the committee. Applicants will be notified within two weeks of the deadline.

The selection committee will give priority to proposals that address the Honors College's mission and that also give students a sense of our interconnected world, interdisciplinary approaches to learning, and opportunities for self-reflection and intellectual, social, and creative development. Our Mission Statement asserts, "Lloyd International Honors College at UNCG provides an enhanced undergraduate education with an international focus for motivated, high-achieving students in all fields of study. LIHC is an intellectually challenging and engaged community devoted to fostering critical and independent thinking, global awareness, and strong preparation for success in professional, civic, and personal pursuits."

If you have any questions, please contact Omar Ali, Dean of Lloyd International Honors College, at 336-334-5538 or ohal@uncg.edu. Thank you for your time and attention.

Rebecca A. Lloyd

1929-2013

Rebecca A. Lloyd, a 1950 graduate of Woman's College (UNCG), gave her family's name and her financial support to Lloyd International Honors College. In 2006, Lloyd gave UNCG a $4 million gift to endow the Honors College, the largest alumni gift the university has ever received. The daughter of grocer Aubrey Paul Lloyd and seamstress Georgia Garrison Lloyd, she was born May 29, 1929, in Greensboro, North Carolina. The Honors College is named for her parents. After graduation, she joined the U.S. Navy. While working on her master's degree in personnel management at New York University, Lloyd served as a course instructor in the Naval Correspondence Course Center. In addition, she served in Washington, D.C., as Communications and Budgeting Officer at the Office of Chief Naval Operations, and in Yokohama, Japan, as Assistant Chief Staff Officer, and in the Amphibious Force, Pacific Fleet. Lloyd later worked as a commercial realtor in San Diego, California. In 2009, UNCG awarded her an honorary doctorate, naming her Doctor of Humane Letters. Of her support for the Honors College, Lloyd once said, "The Honors College will give students the international viewpoint that's needed in their education. To the extent that my gift could help world peace come about, I'm happy to be making it."

APPLICATION FORM

The Rebecca A. Lloyd
Distinguished Resident Fellowship
2019

Application Check List:

- Application Form with signatures
- Letter of interest addressing what you might contribute to the mission of the Honors College
- Curriculum Vitae
- List of courses you have taught over the previous two years
- Proposal of courses you would like to teach during the 2019 year (1-2 pages)
- Brief description of your research agenda (1 page)

Applicant Signature

Date

Applicant Name (please print)

Head or Director Signature

Date

Department or Program (please print)

Academic Unit, e.g. College of Arts & Sciences (please print)